Fan-Sash Making.

METAL FAN-SASHES, of various descriptions, will be made by the subscriber, at his shop, lower end of Duke Street. The want of a Metal Fan-Sash Manufactory in Alexandria, has hitherto been severely felt by builders and others, who have been compelled to make use of wood, which is neither elegant nor durable. The various forms into which the metal can be shaped have given it a decided superiority, and the difference in the price is very trifling. The subscriber has been at considerable expense in procuring the necessary preparations, and relies on public enterprise for success in the undertaking.

Gentlemen in the country, by sending the dimensions of their sashes, can have them made at the same price as if in town.

ENIGMA.

It gives to the thunder the force of its crash,
It gives to the lightning the fire of its flash, Without it the ocean-wave ceases to dash,
It is found in your rocks of wild magical form,
It blasts with the Simoon, and leads on the storm;
It warms in the sunshine, it glads in the showers,
And with roses it twines round the green summer bower;
The seasons in it have beginning and end,
The elements own it their last constant friend;
Without it nor soldier nor seaman may roam, Without it abridged are the comforts of home;
While science, nay even sea, sun, stars and sky, Bereft of it, in one common ruin would lie;
Though unseen in the evening dew gild-ing the thorn, It lives in each spangle that decks it at morn;
Though its absence by Harmony never was mist, Yet nor music nor song could without it exist;
Though intimate 'tis, nay, leagued ever found With paupers, it does in possessions abound;
And found too 'tis—oh, how subtle and slight!
Deep in falsehood, it ne'er yet was caught in a lie;
Though a stranger to comfort, it revels in bliss, Though a stranger to love, it delights in a kiss.

SOLUTION—the letter B.

Original Criticism.

CHILD HAROLD'S PILGRIMAGE: BY LORD BYRON. CANTO IV. MURRAY, LONDON. PP. 128.

Our author's picture of the bay of Naples, an object which has been aptly styled "The Iliad of Nature," is the fullest and most complete one in the poem. With this information the reader must at present rest content; for, to insert the whole description exceeds our limits, and to extract a part of it would be injurious to the rest. But Neapolitan scenery was not the chief allurement to lord Byron. His mind, looking always to the awful and the solemn, is engrossed by the knowledge that Naples contains the tomb of Virgil, and that it was the scene of Murat's power and fall. His reflections on the death of this celebrated general we find it impossible to omit.
I saw him die—I saw him die, as one Of the mean people, and brought forth on bier:
I saw him die, and no man left to moan His doleful fate, that late him loved dear:
Scarce any left to close his eyelids near,
Scarce any left upon his lips to lay The sacred sod, or requiem to say.
He now is dead, and all his glory gone, And all his greatness vapoured to nought—
That as a glass upon the water shone, Which vanished quite, so soon as it was sought:
His name is wasting fast from mortal thought,
No any poet seeks him to rehearse—Yet many poets honour'd him alive.
It would seem that lord Byron ended his journey in the south of Italy at the city of Naples, and went thence, through the papal territories, to Ancona. Here embarking in a felucca he sailed to Venice. This city offered however no attraction to him, for soon leaving it, and passing rapidly through Padua, Montebello and Vicenza, he arrived at Marengo. The dissertation (if that term may be applied to poetry) on the celebrated battle fought here in 1800 is inferior, we think, to that in canto 3, on the battle of Waterloo.
Of the twelve stanzas which constitute it, we have room for the first only.
Marengo! who can tread thy hallowed ground,
The Austrian sepulchre where Melas fell,
Nor feel the patriot blood within him burn?

Not thou, poor gallant France, whose deeds but tell The glory of thy son—the chieftain's toll!

The blended banners of the world ne'er quail'd, Nor freedom strove in such a mighty brawl,
As in that crimson flood where monarchs fall'd
And Hapsburg's princes Gallic foes bewail'd.

When the author arrives at Pavia he forgets that Francis I. there yielded to the "Star of the house of Austria," and every thing else but that Boethius is there buried.

No mortal sees the monumental stone That decks Boethius, thy sacred dust, (Albeit his own dark deeds have him undone)

Who feeleth not that Heaven is always just,
And of our foes our fellow man's the worst:
Could dungeon terrors move thine ardent soul,
Or deadly threats of monkish hate ac-curest,
You starry gem that gilds the southern pole Shed'st not a milder beam than virtue's soft control

Of the rhythm of this canto we regret to say that it is considerably less harmonious than that of the two first. This species of metre, as used by Spenser and Waller, was much more rugged and dragging than it has been subsequently to the alterations made in it by Thomson, Beattie and Campbell. But by far the greatest improvement it has received is from lord Byron himself, who increased the proportion of long syllables, and aggravated very gradually the quantity of the lines, as they approach the full, sonorous Alexandrine which terminates the stanza.

The sudden unnatural passage from quick to slow which so incommodes the lines of the earliest users of this measure, was thus avoided. The mind beheld with satisfaction the regular rhythmic pyramid (if we may be allowed the illustration) exhibited by each stanza, and the ear dwelt luxuriously on its finely-toned melody. With unaccountable fickleness of taste, his lordship in the 3d canto, studied to demolish the fabric he had reared, and though he may have gratified his own waywardness, displeased every reader who had any "musick in his soul" by perpetually throwing the pause in the middle of the line, and causing the close of one verse to run into the next. The abrupt halting motion thus given to the measure, is indeed not so obvious in the present canto, but it has yielded place to improprieties equally offensive. The writer has taken the more than poetical license of using the old Spenserian stanza, and the modern one alternately. This vicissitude, though analogous to the comparatively venial one which characterizes the dancing, babish verses of Mr. Scott, is wholly inadmissible in the majestic rhythm in which lord Byron has immortalized his travels. Of these strictures on his versification every reader will admit the justness who compares the nine introductory stanzas to the 3d canto of Harold, with the first page which he opens in the 3d and with those of the 4th which we cited in the outset. Let him also read the following stanza taken at random:

I well consider all that ye have said,
And find that all things steadfastness do hate
And changed be; yet, being rightly weigh'd,
They are not altered from their first estate,
But by their change their being do dilate; And turning to themselves at length again,
Do work their own perfection so by late; Then over these change doth not rule and reign;
But they reign over change, and do their states maintain.

This quotation also illustrates the noble author's fondness for abstract disqui-sition.

[Remainder to-morrow.]

The Rev. Rowland Hill, in a conversation on the powers of the letter H, where it was contended that it was no letter, but a simple aspiration, took the opposite side of the question, and insisted on its being to all intents and purposes a letter, and concluded by observing that if it were not, it was a very serious affair to him, as it would occasion his being ill all the days of his life.

An Irishman, seeing an old man and woman in the stocks, said, that they put him in mind of the "babe in the wood."

ALEXANDRIA SATURDAY, MARCH 14, 1815.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT AT WASH-INGTON.

Friday, March 13, 1815.

Yesterday, on the clerk of the house of representatives reading over, as usual, the journal of the preceding day's proceedings, Mr. Poindexter, observing that the contents of the petition of Señor Vincente de Pazos had been described in the journal, moved to strike out that part from the record, upon the ground that the petition had not been received by the house. This motion was rejected.

However reluctant I may feel to set up an opinion contradictory to that of that very wise and well informed body of authority of which I am speaking, I must avail myself of the rights of a free press, to declare that Mr. Poindexter's motion was founded on just grounds and ought to have been granted. If the petition was rejected on a direct motion that it should not be received, it is evident that it could be so treated on no other grounds than its total unfitness to find a place in our legislature or its records; and this unfitness was specifically declared in debate to arise from the insolence and offensiveness of its contents to the president, and in him to the nation at large. On this very ground it was that the motion for laying the petition on the table was negatived—Mr. Dougherty acted on the occasion as he always does in his official capacity, with discretion and sound judgment. It was no error on his part to enter on his journal a description of a petition which had been read—the error was in reading the petition at all, till the usual forms of congress had been complied with, by a member's pledging himself for its inoffensive-ness. For, in my mind, the speaker's presenting it officially from the chair did no more stand for such a pledge than would the laying of any letter he received before them—a circumstance which often occurs without imposing any responsibility upon him. This right of petition has never been questioned; but no petition has a claim to reception that is not presented by a member of the house.

And why, but to prevent rude and in-decorous charges being obtruded upon congress? It ought not to have been offered without the pledge I allude to.— Had that form been observed, much loss of time and many mortifying reflections would have been spared.— The good people of the United States would have been spared the reflection that, on precedent, any foreigner may insult their government by appealing from one branch of it against the other—and whenever his own spleen or the interested or ambitious designs of native disorganizers shall prompt him, may endeavor to set our government at variance with itself, and exhibit the United States in the humiliated posture of suffering its first magistrate—the patrius pater of the republic—to be with impunity rudely entreated by any new adventurer who sits down on our shores and thinks proper to write PATRIOT on his shop board, be the credentials of his patriotism whatever they may. They would have been also spared the reflection that there were twenty-eight legislators who in the face of the world so far forgot themselves as to cover over that insult. What the general complexion is in which this business appeared to the public, may be gathered from this fact—that with as great celerity as intelligence could be conveyed, it was, merely in consequence of the speaker having in the just discharge of his duty laid the petition before the house, spread all over Georgetown that Mr. Clay had impeached the President. Will the gentlemen who patronized this offensive document then be able easily to reconcile it to their judgments that they did not, on the contrary, move in the first instance to have it thrown under the table, and in the next vote for the erasure of its very name from the records of the house.

THE INTERNAL IMPROVEMENTS Were again on the tapis and spoke out for more than five hours—and will again to-day.

We regret that our correspondent 'Z' should have conceived our note on Tuesday as prohibiting him the use of our columns. Our meaning was, that his numbers should be so divided by him, that each one might occupy no more than a single column. In this order we should be pleased to insert them daily, or as often as his leisure would permit.

We are requested by several commercial gentlemen to mention that seamen are much wanted in our port, and that a considerable number would immediately procure good employment and lucrative wages.

DARING ROBBERY OF THE MAIL.
About 11 o'clock on Wednesday night last, the great Eastern Mail from this city and the Southward, on its way to Philadelphia, was robbed when within two miles of Havre de Grace. The particulars are in substance as follow, on the authority of a letter from Mr. Ludlow, to John H. Barney, esq. of this city:

The robbery was committed by three men, whose faces were blacked. They were armed with pistols, and had made a fence across the road, which stopped the progress of the horses. There were in the mail wagon the above mentioned Mr. Ludlow and the driver, both of whom were suddenly seized, pistols presented to their breasts, and instant death threatened in case they made the least noise or resistance. Their hands were then bound behind them, and they were led a short distance into the adjacent woods and tied to trees. The mail was also taken into it broken open and examined—those containing money robbed of their contents.
After the examination of the mail, which occupied about two hours, Mr. L. and the driver were brought back to the waggon remaining in the road. One of the robbers proposed to shoot them, in order to prevent a discovery—to this the other two dissented, declaring that, as they had gained their object, money, bloodshed was unnecessary. They were then bound to the wagon, where they remained for the space of two hours, before they were enabled to extricate themselves. The robbers each mounted a horse, and the fourth horse was led off, it is supposed to prevent an alarm, should either Mr. L. or the driver escape. The amount taken from the mail is supposed to be considerable.

We understand the postmaster at Havre de Grace has taken measures to collect the letters left by the robbers, and that they will be forwarded forthwith.

Philadelphia, March 10.

It is a little remarkable that both to the eastward and westward of us, and at no great distance, the breaking up of the ice in the rivers has been attended by most destructive effects, while the long and frequently turbulent rivers Delaware and Schuylkill, in which we are most immediately interested, have been released from their icy fetters without occasioning any violence or alarm whatever; while upon the nearly parallel streams, the Hudson and the Susquehan-nah, unexampled injuries have been sustained.

[Union.]

It is stated that more than four hundred families in Albany have suffered more or less by the late inundation, and some of them severely. A slaughter house in the upper part of the city, containing property to the amount of $6000, has been swept off and entirely destroyed.— The water was two feet deep in the barroom of Baird's Eagle tavern.

In the state of Rhode Island there are thirty-one towns (that is to say, township) and twenty-eight banks!

NEW PUBLICATION.

We are gratified to learn that it is proposed to publish in New Haven, by subscription, a book, to be entitled, "the American Scientific Journal," and to be conducted by Professor Silliman, of Yale College, aided by gentlemen of science and eminence in various parts of the United States. The first number is to be published as soon as the subscription will justify it, and future numbers as often as materials are prepared, probably not less than four in a year. Each number is to contain, usually, from 64 to 80 pages, octavo, and the price will be regulated by the quantity of matter.

"The Journal is intended to embrace the circle of the Physical Sciences, with their application to the Arts, and to every useful purpose;" and it will be a leading object "to illustrate American Natural History and especially Mineralogy and Geology."

Such a work will of itself excite the interest and attention of all who have a taste for Science; and the name of Professor Silliman is a sufficient assurance that it will not prove unworthy of the patronage it may receive.

Boston, March 5.

THE WELCOME MESSENGER.
On Wednesday last, returned to this port, the brig Messenger, Captain Petersen, from Newfoundland. This vessel conveyed to St. John's, the supplies provided by subscription in this town for the numerous distressed sufferers by the unprecedented fires at that place. She was the messenger of sympathy and relief, and is that of the sincerest gratitude. The promptness with which the activity in executing the good intention which were instantly formed, and the zeal and perseverance with which Captain Petersen and his hardy seamen contended against the hazards and extreme inclemency of winter in these northern regions, were, under Heaven, the cause of the arrival of these supplies while it was at all practicable to approach the shore, and land the cargo.

The Messenger sailed from Boston on the 29th Dec. and reached St. John's on the 16th of Jan. She was able to enter the harbor, but the ice immediately imposed its imperious embargo, and she remained frozen in till the grateful inhabitants, profiting by some relaxation in the weather, succeeded, after ten days laboring efforts, in cutting her passage to the ocean. Frequently two hundred men were employed at a time for this purpose, as all were anxious to lessen a detention that might be inconvenient to those concerned in the vessel. The Messenger was embarrassed by the ice for several days after leaving St. John's Harbor, and even when upwards of 100 miles from the land.

The sensations excited and the scene produced by the arrival of the Messenger at St. John's, were such as proved that the relief was bestowed among worthy objects, and constituted a rich reward and an honorable tribute to the donors.
The sloop from New-York, with the supplies and clothing, provided by the inhabitants of New-York and Philadelphia, and which sailed early in January, did not arrive. We heard a short time since, that in unfavorable weather she put into Pope's Harbor, in Nova Scotia, where, we fear she has got frozen up, and as the population is inconsiderable, there might be no alternative but remaining till spring.

From the Salem Gazette.

The Newfoundland sufferers received the donations of their relief from Boston with the most lively gratitude, and sundry resolutions expressive of their warm feelings were passed by the "Irish Benevolent Society" (many of whom had lost their all) of which we extract the following:

Resolved, That this unexampled act of humanity from the citizens of Boston, towards the sufferers of this town from the devastating fires of the 7th and 21st November last, is of such a character, that we cannot command language or adopt an adequate mode to express a due sense of our feeling on the occasion, or the obligations we are placed under.

Resolved, That in their entering so promptly into the spirit of our wants and miserable situation, and so speedily and unolicited, by sending us success, was reviving the pristine age of true Christianity.

Resolved, That in their doing that, they have evinced more general philanthropy, than we have experienced or witnessed elsewhere.

St. John's (N. F.) Jan. 20.

On Friday last arrived here the American brig Messenger, Captain Petersen, from Boston, having a full cargo of provisions for the sufferers by the late fires.
We understand the cargo to consist of 500 bbls Flour and Corn Meal; 1000 bags bread and 11 tierces Rice. Such was the benevolent sympathy excited in the minds of the hospitable inhabitants of Boston by the melancholy tidings of our distress, that with the greatest promptitude, not only was a sum of money raised, and provisions purchased, but a vessel was loaded with the greatest despatch—we believe in about ten hours.
The persons employed in loading the brig, refused to receive any remuneration for their trouble.

Philadelphia, March 11.

At the late Court of Quarter Sessions, held by judge John Ross, at Doylestown, for the county of Berks, a person was convicted of Eaves Dropping, an offence thus described by judge Blackstone:

"EAVES DROPPERS, or such as listen under walls or windows, or the eaves of a house, to overhear after discourse, and thereupon to frame slanderous and mischievous tales, are a common nuisance and presentable at the courtleet, or are indictable at the sessions, and punishable by fine and finding sureties for the good behaviour."

He was sentenced to pay a fine of 20 dollars, to give security himself and one surety, each in the sum of 100 dollars, to keep the peace for one year.

DISPUTE BETWEEN SPAIN & PORTUGAL.

Spain and Portugal have not yet come to any accord on the subject of the restitution of Monte Video. On the contrary, Portugal, by authentic advices received by the last mails from Rio Janeiro, and confirmed by letters from Madrid, refuses to cede that fortress until Spain has terminated the question with her colonies, either by conquest or negotiation.

Spain urges the immediate restitution, as a sine qua non, that she may at that station land and re-organize the force which is ultimately to attempt the subjugation of Buenos Ayres. "It is in the confidence of that restitution she has prepared the Russian fleet, subjected her policy to the regulation of the Russian Autocrat, and equipped with great sacrifices, several thousand men to make the primary judgment. Without that station as an harbor for the secret fleet, without that city as a place d'armes, she can pursue the enterprise." Monte Video not occupied in a spirit of ambition, hostility to any of the belligerents, but as an indispensable measure of self-defence to prevent the revolutionary infecting the Brazilian provinces. cannot be ceded to Spain under existing circumstances (a noble invention of a modern diplomacy, committing nothing signifying every thing) without being sented by the Spanish Americans as act of hostility.

Portugal did not take Monte Vid from the authorities or troops of Spain but from the government of Artigas, w it not directly acknowledging obedience to Buenos Ayres, was nevertheless a ally against Ferdinand, and a guardi of Spanish American Independence.
To restore Monte Video to Spain as base for her aggressive operations, wou be virtually to engage the king of th Brazil and Portugal in a contest whic his policy, as an auxiliary or principa must avoid.

"If the troops of Ferdinand did r possess Monte Video, what confidence could the Brazilian cabinet repose in t successful issue of an expedition, whic battled a much larger British armame than Spain can send, when the defensiv means of Buenos Ayres were much le than at the present moment?"

"In case of failure, what protectio could Spain afford to the king of the Br against the vengeance of the injured and victorious Spanish Americans?"

The matter then stands thus:—Spa threatens the seizure of Portugal to correct acquiescence:—the king of the Br is said to be prepared for the sacrific which it it deprives him of a country dear to his affections, releases hi from a vassalage revolting to his dignit and ruinous to the interests both of h European and American subjects. I Portugal he is seated on a throne whic obliges him to receive his orders from the custom house officers of England, or the Alguazils of Madrid, and America, i adapts his policy to the spirit of th country he has adopted, he may reig independent lord of the soil, and the d fected constitutional ruler of a free people.

On Thursday morning Lord Castlereagh, accompanied by his brother Lord Stewart, set off for Brighton, no doub for the purpose of communicating to the prince regent the late important matter upon which the consultations have been held, and the dispatches sent off.

It was the proposal of our ministers that the conference on the mediation between Spain and Portugal should be held in London—not in Paris, because a ne-gociation for a point so strongly insisted on by one branch of the house of Bourbon should not be carried on at the court of another. On the commencement of the business is shown a leaning.

The most material point in the matter of mediation is that Spain, supported by Russia, resolves to expedite their armament to South America, at the same time that the question is submitted to reference. The English ministers justly say, that all mediation is hopeless, if this threatening course be pursued. But the remonstrances of our ministers are disregarded.

MARRIED.

verend Mr. Griffith, Mr. JACOB BARTZ, the masters and mistresses of every family, lists of all male tytheables belonging to or residing in their respective families, owner of taxable property, shall neglect or refuse to give in a list of all male tytheables belonging to or residing in his or her family, or of his or her taxable property, within five days after demand made thereof by any assessor, the person so offending shall forfeit and pay one hundred dollars. And if any person whatsoever, shall wilfully omit or misrepresent in the list given in, any tytheable or any taxable property, or shall in any other manner conceal the same from the knowledge of the assessors, the person so offending shall forfeit and pay double the amount of the tax imposed on such tythe-able or taxable property. Every mer-person, having in his or her service or employment any clerk, journeyman, ap-count of the same in his or her list of tytheables, and shall be accountable for James Kennedy & Son.

RESPECTFULLY inform the public that they have just received from LEE'S MEDICINE STORE, No. 46, Maiden lane, New-York, a fresh supply of the following valuable MEDICINES:

Hamilton's Worm-destroying Lozen- ges.
Which have within sixteen years past cured an immense number of persons of both sexes of every age and in every situation, of various dangerous complaints arising from WORMS, and from obstruc- tions or foulness in the stomach and bow- els.

This medicine bears no analogy what- ever to others of similar titles so com- monly complained of as operating with violence; on the contrary a particular excellence of this remedy is its being suited to every age and constitution. It contains nothing but what is perfectly in- nocent & is so mild in its operation that it cannot injure the most delicate pregnant lady or the tenderest infant of a week old should no worms exist in the body; but will without pain or griping cleanse the stomach and bowels of whatever is foul or offensive, and thereby prevent the pi- duction of worms and many fatal dis- orders. The lozenges are particularly efficacious in carrying off all gross hu- mours and eruptions, feverish and bilious complaints, and are the safest and mild- est purgative that can be used on any occasion.

Description of Worms, and the sym- toms by which they are known.
Worms which infest the human body are chiefly of four kinds viz.—The Ter- res or large round worm; the Ascaris, or small maw-worm; the Cucurbitine, or short flat white worm; and lastly, the Tania, or tape-worm, so called from its resemblance to tape. This is often many yards long and is full of joints. It is most hurtful and most difficult to remove.

Among the symptoms attending worms are—disagreeable breath, especially in the morning; bad and corrupted gums; itching in the nose, and about the seat; convulsions, epileptic fits, and sometimes privation of speech; starting and grind- ing of the teeth in sleep; irregular appe- tite, sometimes loathing food and some- times voracious; purging with slimy and foetid stools; vomiting; large and hard belly; pains and sickness at the stom- ach; pains in the head and thighs and lowness of spirits; slow fever with small and irregular pulse; a dry cough; exces- sive thirst; sometimes pale and unhealthy countenance, and sometimes the face bloated and flushed.

Persons afflicted with any of the above symptoms should have immediate re- course to Hamilton's Worm Destroying Lozenges, which have been constantly attended with success in all complaints similar to those above described.

A dose of this medicine given occa- sionally during the warm season, will ef- fectually prevent "the vomiting and pur- ging of children"—a dreadful disorder, which annually destroys thousands of the infant part of our citizens. It is likewise the mildest and most certain remedy known, and has restored to health and strength a great number who in an ad- vanced stage of this fatal complaint. Par- ticular and plain instructions are given for every part of the necessary treatment to such cases.

Children generally take this medicine with eagerness, having a pleasing ap- pearance, and an agreeable taste.

The Restorative Powder for the Teeth and Gums.

For the prevention and cure of BILIOUS and MALIGNANT FEVERS is recommended HAHN'S ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS
THIS Medicine has been attended with a degree of success highly grateful to the inventor's feelings in several parts of the West Indies and in the Southern and Middle States, &c.

The testimony of a number of person can be adduced, who have reason to be- lieve that a timely use of this salutary remedy has, under Providence, preserved their lives when in the most alarming cir- cumstances.

Facts of this conclusive nature speak more in favour of a medicine than con- tinuous of pompous eulogy founded on mere assertion.

It is not indeed presumptuously pro- posed as an infallible cure, but the inven- tor has every possible reason that can re- sult from extensive experience for be- lieving that a dose of these Pills taken once in every two weeks during the pre- valence of our bilious fevers, will prove an infallible preventive; and further, that in the earlier stages of those diseases their use will very generally succeed in restoring health, and frequently in cases esteemed desperate and beyond the power of common remedies.

The operation of these pills is perfectly mild, so as to be used with safety by persons in every situation and of every age. They are excellently adapted to carry off superfluous bile and prevent its mor- bid secretions—to restore and amend the appetite—to produce a free perspiration and thereby prevent colds which are of- ten of fatal consequences. A dose never fails to remove cold if taken on its first appearance: they are celebrated for re- moving habitual costiveness—sickness at the stomach and severe head-ache—and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.

They have been found remarkably effi- cacious in preventing and curing disor- ders attendant on long voyages, and should be procured and carefully preserv- ed for use by every seaman.

Fan-Nash Making.
METAL FAN-SASHES, of various descriptions, will be made by the subscriber, at his shop, lower end of Duke street. The want of a Metal Fan-Sash Manufactory in Alexandria, has hitherto been severely felt by builders and oth- ers, who have been compelled to make use of wood, which is neither elegant nor durable. The various forms into which the metal can be shaped have given it a decided superiority, and the difference in the price is very trifling. The subscriber has been at considerable expence in pro- curing the necessary preparations, and relies on public enterprise for success in the undertaking.
Gentlemen in the country, by sending the dimensions of their sashes, can have them made at the same price as if in town.
